

Welcome

18 February 2014

NSF Workshop for Aspiring PIs in Cyber-Physical Systems

Workshop Goal

- Help aspiring PIs understand what NSF (and panels convened by NSF) are expecting to see in a successful CPS proposal.

Approach

- exciting talks
- time for discussions

Exciting Talks

- NSF Program Directors
 - Keith Marzullo
 - David Corman
 - Theodore Baker
 - Sylvia Spangler
 - And others

Exciting Talks

- Existing CPS Principal Investigators
 - André Platzer, Carnegie Mellon University
 - Sriram Sankaranarayanan, University of Colorado, Boulder
 - Hadas Kress-Gazit, Cornell University (via web)

Time for Discussion

Times for one-on-one meetings between NSF Program Directors and Aspiring PIs are at the front desk and printed on the meeting rooms.

You can also see the times if you login to the CPS-VO and visit the “Logistics” tab for the Aspiring PIs Group.

Please be 10 minutes early to all one-on-one meetings.

The first meetings start right when this session ends at 9:30

Any exchange of slots for one-on-one meetings must be figured out by Aspiring PIs.

If two Aspiring PIs have exchanged slots, please indicate a finalized swap on the sheet posted outside the meeting room for the benefit of the PD.

If you know you will miss your one-on-one meeting slot, please contact Sean Whitsitt in person at the desk.

Sean Whitsitt

If you don't have a meeting slot, sign up for an empty one on the sheets posted outside the rooms.

If we run out of slots, we will work with Program Directors to add more times.

If you were offered travel support, we hope that you won't have to do anything else after you sign the forms in your folder and follow any additional instructions there...

But you have no doubt asked to “make sure” before, and received contradictory answers from the same person in your organization.

Thanks for your patience if we ask you later to sign a new form or provide more information.

Broad Dissemination

- We are recording this, for distribution to folks who could not attend
- If you don't wish to be recorded asking a question, you can wait until the break to start a conversation with a colleague or Program Director
- The videos will be publicly available from the CPS-VO page for this Workshop, so you can forward the links to your colleagues.
