Towards Neural-controlled Artificial Legs using High-Performance Embedded Computers

Objective: To develop a reliable and high-performance neural-machine interface (NMI) that accurately interprets the user's intended movements in real-time for neural control of artificial legs.